TIME TO WINE

Rotermanni

A wine bar and shop for the curious.

Wines from the edges of the map, explored one glass at a time.

Wine List September 2026

Curated by Kristina Suursoo

ABOUT TIME TO WINE

Time to Wine Rotermanni is a wine bar and shop built around discovery.

Our selection brings together benchmark producers, grower Champagne, mature vintages, low-intervention wines and distinctive bottles from regions and grape varieties beyond the familiar.

Around 60% of our selection is imported directly by us. This gives us the freedom to look beyond the usual market offering, work closely with producers we believe in and introduce wines that might otherwise be difficult to find in Estonia.

We wrote this list for everyone — from seasoned professionals to guests opening their very first bottle of grower Champagne. Wherever a grape variety helps you find your way, we name it. A wine list should invite curiosity, not require expertise.

Every wine listed is physically available on-site and may be enjoyed in the bar or purchased to take home, subject to availability. On occasion, a wine may be temporarily unavailable due to a recent sale or a delay in restocking.

You do not need to commit to a bottle to discover something exceptional.
Tell us what you enjoy — or let us surprise you.

Bottle prices shown in this list are retail prices. All prices are in euros (€) and refer to 75 cl bottles unless otherwise stated.

A €15 service fee per bottle applies when enjoyed in the bar.

BY THE GLASS

At any given time, 24 still wines are served from our dispensers, each available in three different pour sizes.

The selection is never fixed. Our entire cellar feeds this evolving programme, with almost every wine eventually finding its way into the rotation.

If something from the list catches your interest, please ask our team whether it can become the next bottle to be opened.

Our Champagne and sparkling selection changes frequently and is preserved using the Le Verre de Vin system. Selected rare and mature bottles are served with Coravin where appropriate.

WAYS TO EXPLORE

Still wines from our dispensers are available in three pour sizes:

2.5 cl — Discovery Pour

A first taste — for curiosity, comparison or trying something new.

7.5 cl — Exploration Pour

Our signature serving size — enough to truly get to know a wine.

12 cl — Full Pour

A complete serving to enjoy at your own pace.

Sweet and fortified wines by the glass are served in 4 cl pours.

Champagne and sparkling wines by the glass are served in 12 cl pours.

HOW TO READ THE SYMBOLS

ORGANIC — CERTIFIED

Where official organic certification has been confirmed, the symbol indicates certified organic production. Please ask our team if you would like us to verify the current certification status of a particular wine.

BIODYNAMIC — CERTIFIED

Where confirmed, the symbol indicates certification by Demeter, Biodyvin or an equivalent organisation.

LOW INTERVENTION — PRACTICE-BASED

Low intervention is a winemaking approach, not an official certification. It may include native fermentation, few or no additions, minimal filtration and reduced sulphur. Methods vary between producers.

GROWER CHAMPAGNE — PRODUCER-BASED

Grower Champagne is made by producers who grow their own grapes and make the wine themselves. Often produced in small quantities, these Champagnes tend to reflect a particular estate, vineyard or terroir.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Bonnet-Ponson, "Seconde Nature"

A Chamery grower Champagne with nothing added — no dosage, no sulphites. Organic and biodynamic in the vineyard, as little intervention as possible in the cellar, and what remains is the pure tension of the chalk beneath. The one I'd come back for.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Jérôme Blin, "La Pluchotte" Rosé

From cell biology to Champagne: not the most obvious career path. Jérôme eventually returned to his family vineyards in Vincelles, bringing with him his own vision of Champagne. La Pluchotte is a rosé made entirely from Meunier — vinous, structured and full of character, a rosé made to be taken seriously.

MCC, The Green Man, Silverthorn, Brut, Robertson, South Africa (Magnum)	2022	83

KRISTINA'S PICK — Tokyo Gómez Rojo, Espumoso de Pedro Ximénez

Forget everything you thought you knew about Pedro Ximénez. The grape behind some of Spain's sweetest wines becomes a bone-dry sparkling wine. Unexpected, provocative and seriously good — that's how the guys at Casa Rojo make wine.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Corti Cugini, "Mokab"

Laura Cugini looks as delicate as her wine. A pét-nat from Schiava grown on old pergolas in the hills of Gussago, in a colour that is hard to put into words — something close to neon pink. Fresh, refined and seemingly fragile, it then surprises you with a charisma and character you never expected. Just like Laura.

KRISTINA'S PICK — La Soufrandière, "La Carbonnode"

What happens when you make Chardonnay like Beaujolais? La Carbonnode is whole-bunch Chardonnay given nine days of carbonic maceration — a technique far more at home with Gamay. Organic, biodynamic and wonderfully unconventional. Strange on paper, brilliant in the glass — and absolutely worth trying at least once in your life.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Les Vignes de Babass, "Joseph Anne Françoise"

I first tasted Babass in Paris and knew right away I wanted it on my list. Easier said than done: no website, no contacts, just a modest Instagram account. But no risk, no Babass! I was lucky to get a reply from Agnès, Sébastien Dervieux's charming wife — and now their wines are here. Free, wild, deep and surprising, just like the two of them.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Hunter McKirdy

A Scotsman and a South African walk into Alsace. It sounds like the start of a joke — it is actually the start of a very good story. Old vines on Jurassic limestone, Champagne-style pressing, wild fermentation in old Burgundy barrels. Outsiders who see Alsace with fresh eyes — exactly the kind of discovery this wine list was made for.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Comte Abbatucci Cuvée Faustine Blanc

On a Corsican hillside, Jean-Charles Abbatucci plays traditional polyphonic songs to his vines — and he means it. His family helped save the island's forgotten grape varieties when no one else cared. Biodynamic, granite-grown and unmistakably Corsican: a white wine that tastes of a place, not a trend.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Shun Minowa, "Jai Guru Deva"

From Tokyo to Spain, Chile and finally Emilia — Shun Minowa followed wine until he found the place he wanted to stay. Working with local Ortrugo and Malvasia, he brings a distinctly personal perspective to the traditions of Val Trebbia. Japanese roots, Italian soil and a remarkable journey — all somehow captured in one bottle.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Vetrère CRÈ

A nearly forgotten Puglian grape with a second life. Minutolo was once mistaken for Fiano, then rediscovered as something entirely its own — intensely aromatic, floral and unmistakably Mediterranean. I find something mysterious in wines made by women. Vetrère, led by sisters Annamaria and Francesca Bruni, has exactly that magic.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Weingut Fritsch, Roter Veltliner

Grüner may have stolen the spotlight, but Austria has other grapes worth knowing. Despite the name, Roter Veltliner isn't even related to Grüner — and it tastes nothing like it. Richer, deeper and more generous, with ripe fruit and texture rather than all that familiar green freshness. A very different side of Austria, and one well worth discovering.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Tim Hillock, La Cósmica

This Chenin doesn't whisper — it sings. Tim named it after the view from his vineyard: a sky so dark you can see the Milky Way. Juicy pear, peach and lemon, creamy texture and a salty, mineral finish. It's the kind of wine you don't want to analyse — you just want another glass.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Alexandre Bonnet, "La Forêt"

Champagne without the bubbles — and a rosé that almost thinks it's a red. It comes from Les Riceys, the only village in Champagne with three appellations of its own, and this one is the rarest of them. Cherries, wild strawberries and a pinch of white pepper, with silky tannins. A rosé for the dinner table, not the beach.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Château Le Puy, "Émilien"

Bordeaux is full of great names that made history, but I openly admit my love for the Amoreau family and their Le Puy. The same family since 1610, and no synthetic chemicals have ever touched these vines. That takes courage, strength and a very clear vision. Émilien is different every vintage, and that is the point: it tells the story of time passing. A true Bordeaux legend — and if you want to see Bordeaux from a different angle, this is the wine to do it with.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Saint Jean du Barroux, La Pierre Noire

Dark, wild and unmistakably southern French. Ripe black fruit, herbs and spice, with the freshness of the Ventoux slopes. A wine with a slightly untamed character — powerful enough to impress, but never heavy or obvious.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Bakkanali, K

Not the Tuscany you think you know. High on the volcanic slopes of Monte Amiata, Sangiovese shows its wilder, fresher side — bright red fruit, mountain herbs and serious energy. A beautiful reminder that Tuscany still has secrets to discover.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Bodegas Habla, Habla del Silencio

Silence, apparently, has a lot to say. Born in the wild landscape of Extremadura, this dark, juicy blend is packed with black fruit, spice and Mediterranean herbs. Bold, seductive and surprisingly fresh — Spain beyond the usual map.

KRISTINA'S PICK — Kelley Fox, "Mirabai"

I chased Kelley Fox's wines for more than a year — so yes, I know what it feels like to be a stalker. So far I have only managed to get Mirabai, but I'm not giving up: it was love at first sip. Kelley learned her craft from David Lett, the pioneer of Oregon wine. Mirabai comes from old, own-rooted vines in the Dundee Hills and is almost see-through in the glass: fresh strawberries, raspberries, a hint of spice, silky and long.

KRISTINA'S PICK — BLANKbottle, "The BOMB"

Pieter Walser has one simple rule: no grape varieties on the label. You don't choose his wines by name — you taste them and decide for yourself. So I won't spoil it either. Let me just say this: dark and generous, full of black fruit, with a hint of tobacco and spice and a serious backbone. The name says the rest.
